DnD World Drew and Kyle

The Pantheon:

The one god is not perfect but is all-powerful. He is the lord of the astral sea. In his boredom and adventurousness, he decides to create and try something new. He bisects the astral sea by creating the material plane thus separating the astral sea into upper and lower realms. The different aspects of his personality give rise to different parts of creation. The parts took satisfaction in this and they decided to split into 20 different shards of divinity. These 20 are called the gods and make up the pantheon. Each one is made of three parts: Id (instinct/ the perfect body of supermatter the divine shard), Ego (consciousness), and superego (ethereal spirit/character where Seed is a piece of this) and they may exist separately, though Ego must maintain a connection/tether to something at all times.

1. *Desperation(*Mega-Terozash): The god of perseverance, cannot find any value in being separate and is desperate to recombine all the shards. He was created by the One, when One split, as a failsafe mechanism towards recombination. He attempts to take his whole divinity through the barrier to the lower realm to force other gods to recombine. This breaks the barrier and smears the planes together thrusting civilization onto the elemental planes and creating the “doom scars” on the earth. After his betrayal of Sloth and absorbing his shard many of the gods return him to the lower realm where a method is devised to prevent Desperation. There Desperation resides trapped in the lower realm (Pandemonium) perpetually fighting off the hordes of minions controlled by Agony and Destruction meant to slow him. Now that he holds two shards, it takes both Agony and Destruction to contain him.
    a. Desires the recombination at any cost.
    b. Holds the id from apathy/sloth
    c. Pandemonium is the area around him and he maintains an increased gravity and pressure around him created by his determination. This is perceived from afar as a slowing of time.
2. *Destruction(*Dinistr/Dee-nee-stra): the god of death and Lord of the abyss, he and his hordes (demons) both hold back Desperation and populate the lower realm.
    a. Desires to destroy and toy with material plane denizens.
    b. Abyss:
        i. Gaping maw
        ii. Thanatos
        iii. Demon Web
        iv. The endlessmaze - Baphamet
        v. Triple realm
        vi. Death Dells

3. Agony(Fajdalom): the god of the 9 hells. He is nine beings further fragmented being in 9 places at once. Only one can use his power at any given time and they have a collective health pool. Each one is the charge over a layer of the 9 hells. His minions (devils) contain Desperation and populate the lower realm.
    a. Desires to torture denizens of the material plane. “So many different kinds of squealing!”
    b. Nine Hells:
        i. Avernus
        ii. Dis
        iii. Minaurus
        iv. Phlegethos
        v. Stygia
        vi. Malbolge
        vii. Maladomini
        viii. Cania (ice)
        ix. Nessus
4. Turmoil(Zurzavar): the god of chaos. Keeps joining either side of the war in the lower abyss to maintain the chaos that Desperation makes.
    a. Desires chaos to continue and spread.
5. Sloth(Lahar): the former god of boredom/apathy is an empyrean (mm130). His shard was stolen from his dwelling while he lounged among the people of the material plane.
    a. Desire to not do anything. Doesn’t really care either way. Is a simple soul.
6. Ambition(Vonalzo): the god of tyranny. Faked his death by scheming with Trickery to trick Knowledge. He has absorbed 3 shards gaining the understanding of 3 more ([tbd], Obsession, Hope). The understanding is a seed that exists within a super-ego but is tiny, a living concept. Currently possesses his own superego as well as two seeds.
    a. When he killed Hope, he brainwashed her servant into believing she was Hope who had defeated Ambition but was intentionally forgotten. Ambition trapped her in a deep dungeon/ lost city to be forgotten.
    b. Desires to win by killing the other gods and absorbing their shards or just taking the shards once he is strong enough.
    c. Holds the seeds of Obsession and unknown giving him narcissism further exalting his selfish ambitions.
7. Trickery(Twyll): the god of lies and tomfoolery has helped Ambition fool Knowledge. Pranks people by sending them to and from the Fey (the full moon). Gave creation the idea for Dragons because he thinks they look ridiculous.
    a. Desires making others feel foolish.
    b. Often seen with different visages but always seems to include a red feather.
8. Knowledge(Gwybodaeth): The goddess of truth and information spends most of her time cataloguing all the happenings of the universe. She has been quite busy between the dragon wars, and Creations new Shadowfell (Crescent Moon is incomplete) project, and the mystery of her missing catalogs; she knows she has blanks thinks they are missing entries from Hope being forgotten but suspects there she may have already forgotten someone else (“was it really 18 of us from the start?”).

    a. Desires to chronicle everything and has set up libraries all over.
    b. Ambition will taunt her telling her that she'll never know all the truth unless she combines with Ambition (This would be after knowledge uncovers his faked death)
    c. The lie: Based on her evidence she believes that forgetting a god will weaken them enough to be defeated by another god. That Hope was intentionally forgotten and is left in a precarious situation (allegedly imprisoned by retribution for the alleged destruction of Ambition). She has killed Ambition by fully knowing him (happened during the godlevel power struggle) and using that knowledge to destroy his Ego. new "Hope" is believed to possess a seed of Ambition. This living knowledge (seed) of Ambition persists even still in her memory(Superego). Knowledge thinks Ambition could be resurrected from it.
9. Creation(Talalmany): She is a scientist gone a bit mad with experimentation. She created the dragons, the most recent major addition to earth. Now she is busy creating the Shadowfell (Crescent moon) and the shadow abominations as well. She has taken Izzith as a servant and inspiration for experimentation.
    a. Desires to make new things.
10. Sustain/Stillness (Ataliad) (Man in the cloak of wind): The living Fog desires to keep things the same, unmoving, unchanging.
    a. His dwelling is the infinite staircase. He exists somewhere in the fog sleeping until he hears a disturbance in his house.
    b. Legend about him: A man in a cloak made of wind walks the ways silencing everything in his path.
11. Joy(Mamor): The goddess of revelry. She is all about Id (Partying, dancing, drinking, sexual pleasure). She is quite selfish though.
    a. Desires an eternal state of bliss; don't kill her buzz
    b. She thinks Knowledge is a boring old bookworm 12. Renewal (Felujitas/Fel-we-tash): goes around fixing things that have broken. Rejuvenating things that have withered.
    a. Tends to follow Curiosity around.
    b. Gets along well with Retribution
    c. Dwelling is filled with cats that he fixed.
13. Curiosity (Ymholi): Killed the cat because he wanted to know what it was thinking and took it apart.
    a. Desires to know how. Everything.
14. Domination (Uralom): the god of competition.
    a. Desires to make the strongest of champions and then defeat them.
15. Contemplation (Cyfoes/Kai-fose): the god of puzzles. He is a general and mastermind/architect.
16. Hope (Remeny): Who is that? Has been replaced with her Speaker who now believes she is actually Hope. This was a combined effort by Ambition and Trickery by Giving Hope's name to the speaker thus completing the seed of Hope (which existed inside the speaker as an incomplete understanding of Hope) and reformed her Super-ego using it. The memories of her old self and her old super-ego were also destroyed as part of this process. She has been imprisoned by Retribution for the alleged crime of destroying Ambition's consciousness and super-ego. Even though it was in self-defense it is an unforgivable act.

Ambition wants hopes Id (Power). He copies a superego in his mind to fully know it thereby giving him the understanding to destroy the superego resulting in the remaining understanding being a godlike seed of the former superego.
Secret: Ambition knows how to destroy supergeo. Process creates the seed. The product of destroying a superego erases the memory of it from everything except the seed.
Other gods think forgetting kills you and don't know that dying (superego "destruction") makes you become forgotten.
Ambition wants to operate in secret from the other gods. So he fakes his death.
Ambition purifies his superego by removing hopes seed and giving it to trickery to implant in Hope's speaker.
Trickery lied to ambition and left the speakers superego structure in place when implanting the seed and memories instead of making a new one from scratch as they had agreed upon. This was done as a potential trick on ambition if newhope was able to recover (she would become an enemy of ambition)
Speaker of Hope with false memories believes she is Hope and was placed in prison for killing ambition. (which didnt happen, ambition killed hope).
All gods conclude upon finding newhope that they purposefully forgot Hope in order to deliver capitol punishment to hope for the murder of ambition.
Knowledge thinks she left clues for herself to relearn all the lost information. (someone else must know of Hope or she would be dead. Knowledge is looking for that someone and other clues) Finally concludes that more data is missing than should be reasonable for just one god's death.

17. Fear (Felelem/Fay-lay-lem): known as the protector and prophet, sends flocks of imps to spread doomspeech.
18. Retribution (Eloljaro/ El-ul-yaro): imprisoned hope for killing ambition and is trying to figure out how to revive ambition. He goes around trying to correct things that have gone wrong according to the original plan.
    a. Gets alot of his intel from Renewal
19. Solace/Compassion (Vigasz/Vee-gahs or Cysur/kai-zer):
20. I thought there were more. I guess I was wrong. Must've been the wind.

Secret: Killing a god can be done. Immune to spells 6th level and below. It takes an immense amount of power to do so, as you must find the god in its dwelling and kill it there. Otherwise the destruction of the gods body/spirit combination can rebuild from his dwelling and consciousness. If the consciousness has nowhere to go, then and only then will the divine shard crystallize from the ego and be absorbed by the closest consciousness within 1 standard distance. When a god is destroyed their dwelling and temples crumble. Everyone forgets who they are and nothing is left. When their shard is absorbed an understanding of its past owner is imbued on the new bearer.

Demigods: Servants or Saints of the gods. (Angels MM15) They do not hold a shard of divinity.

Religions:

Primary/ Major Influencing:

1. Ambition's
    a. Temples are run completely by his demigods with all divine blessings coming from them.
    b. Followers offer sacrifices at the temple to gain blessings to further their goals
    c. Believe the doomsday was a blessing from Ambition which gave access of magic to the people to help them be self-sufficient.
2. Compassion's
    a. Clerics lead comfort circles where people find connections with others who have been through the same thing. Togetherness and empathy are the focus.
    b. Believe Doomsday was a trial meant to bring people together.
    c. Teaches acceptance of all struggles and people.
    d. Ceremonies may involve temporary hive mind or hallucinatory experiences of others struggles to allow one to feel empathy for another.
    e. A sermon looks like a mass hallucination of one victim's experience
3. Contemplation's
    a. Monks guide everyone through meditation to calm the mind and explore the world through thinking really hard. Philosophical discussions galore.
    b. No clerics
    c. Still trying to decide what doomsday was all about
    d. Love playing the what if game
    e. Many of the these followers overthink things and turn to fear
    f. Some of these followers also worship knowledge

4. Fear's
    a. Believes Doomsday was the birth of everything bad and that corruption will cause an even worse doomsday in the future
    b. Clerics focus on prophecy and fortunes
    c. Followers give offerings for good luck and fortune telling. They are big on talismans and crystals with positive energy
    d. Devout believers often plagued with nightmares of the future. Prophecies but only of possibilities which exist of bad things happening.
    e. Followers are called to drive fear and threat of retribution upon the wicked
5. Joy's
    a. Promises instant and eternal Joy
    b. House of debauchery and ecstasy inducing irish jigs to a song that never ends.
    c. Followers are addicted to euphoric auras cast by the clerics.
    d. Followers also pay for their memories to be erased/ worries to be taken away.
    e. Believe doomsday doesn't matter. "It's just history. Who cares"
6. Knowledge's
    a. Her paladins(missionaries) and followers go about the land taking records of all things. The clerics record these in tomes
    b. Believe that the things which happen (including doomsday) are per design and attempt to not be involved, only observing. It is a high honor to record history.
    c. Followers often study in the library to learn things which can help them in day to day endeavors. Ie. Sailors learning to read the motion of planets to guide their sailing at night.
    d. Libraries have an entry fee that helps it maintain the books. The fee is both monetary and a light mental probing by the librarian who then catalogues any new information found.

Minor Influencing:

1. Agnostic - Trickery's
    a. Led by trickery himself appears to people individually and in small gatherings to spout random "teachings". Seen as a Buddha-like mentor.
    b. Believe there are no gods
    c. "Seeing is believing" "what you see is what it is"
    d. Magic is part of the natural world.
    e. Believe doomsday is an incidental cosmic event that was catastrophic but neither good nor bad in it's nature.
    f. The followers go about having their own individual beliefs spreading rumors as perceived facts.
    g. There are no conspiracies; it's just all coincidental.
    h. Communities formed of this belief share with each other what they learn from him. Gather at totem poles to recover teachings. The preacher could littleral anyone that Trickery sends on a whim.
1. Renewal's

    a. Followers are hunting for the fountain of youth (the only temple of this god is hidden and protected by a demigod)
    b. Followers believe that doomsday was a disaster beyond all disasters that broke the world.
    c. Believe in reincarnation?
2. Domination's
    a. Antipaladins keep and run arenas where they practice and teach combat to followers
    b. Followers believe that doomsday was a blessing from Domination to test their abilities and forge great and strong people.
    c. Strength is Law

Planes:

1. Material: This bisects the astral sea. Physical world exists inside this barrier and includes the elemental planes. A player sees this as each one being their own planet and having a barrier at the edge of the atmosphere and astral sea. They can see the other planets far off in the sky (the size of OUR moon in the sky) and also a marbled moving swirl of colors which is a distortion of all the location in both the upper and lower realm. Flying off planet into the astral sea requires extended flight and a series of successes on Will/Wisdom checks to stave off the fear of suffocation.
    a. Doomsday: The result of Desperation bringing his entire divinity through the material barrier is as follows:
        i. Smearing of elemental planes (civilization supplanted from earth to other planets)
        ii. Arcane magic is now possible by the non-godlike beings (innately through the newly magical blood or through the art of arcana)
        iii. Dooms scars left on the east and west poles of the earth having higher density than the rest of the earth cause the earth to flip every 73 days. (five times a year)
            1. East Node (Mother storm) is a deep cone of black glassy super dense crust with crystalline shapes lining it. It is the compressed mass from an entire continent that used to stand between our two existing ones. Now there only resides a massive whirlpool that creates other spinoff whirlpools, making sea travel nearly impossible. At the center of the superwhirlpool there is a massive waterspout comprised of dark storm clouds (a column of dark stormclouds that completely cover the hole of the whirlpool) Thunder storms and smaller whirlpools spin off this mother storm.

2. West Node (Umbra) is a giant black continent (same super dense black glassy crystaline material) with a massive hole in the center (50Mile Diameter). The whole is rimmed by very tall mountain range. Through this continent run massive cracks where seawater runs up towards the center. Above the continent is one fluffy cloud casting the whole thing into shadow. The land is inhabited by a variety of Oozes that live in the smaller of the cracks which run through the ground.
3. The barrier above (created by the one god self heals like a liquid.
4. A portion of the material barrier broke off and logged itself into tunnel through the center of the earth. As this sliver expanded to fill the space a strange interaction between itself and the data stored in the crystalline walls created a new plane called “Limbo”.

2. Limbo: Exists inside the tunnel of compressed black crystals of the “doom scars” All the people and places were compressed as data in the these crystalline walls. A strange interacting between the barrier material and the Data crystals create a hologram world based on the former continent and its contents which resets daily. Time there is 72.5 x slower. (1 Day = 2 months outside, every earth flip limbo resets.)

3. Ethereal: Is the spiritual existence on the material plane.

4. Astral Sea (one beings realm): Located as “space”, realm of thought. To move around and do things requires conceptualization (intelligence checks) (For a spell DC is 10 +spell level). To find something also requires a check. It is especially difficult to leave the material plane. Combating someone else’s concept requires a willpower check. It is taxing on your mind which cannot rest. Every day spent there is a level of exhaustion.

    a. Alt Rule: Feeling the raw/pure magical energy and it’s potency course through you, casting spells is addictive(a 50% chance if 3rd level or higher spell). Effect: for any day in which you don’t cast all your spells you gain 1 level exhaustion. Also when you have no more spell slots your willpower is 4.
5. Inside the Upper Realm
    a. Big mountain: Only safe haven in the upper realm where all law is perfectly kept. Climbing the inconceivable mountain requires all types of checks. Intelligence checks auto fail because it can’t be conceived, however other checks can make forward progress. Eventually the upward slope will level out and you will find yourself in the deepest plains of the abyss in a safe city with desperation beyond. His back is to the city as he fights the hordes.

6. Inside the Lower Realm: The floor of the astral sea is a mess of jagged rocks/ stalactites and webbing, the demon web. The webbing hosts condensed astral sea in the form of a river. It flows and enters the abyss below as a waterfall cascading through the areas of the lower realm. This is the river styx.

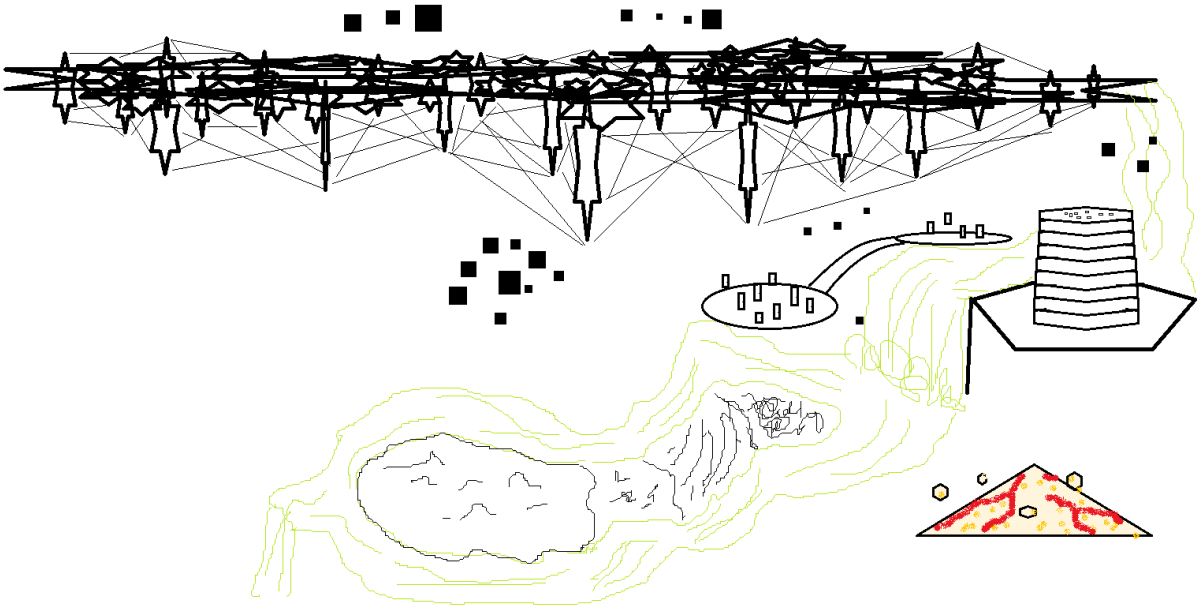
a. City of Doors: Everyone is considered a medium creature. This includes inside the taverns that house the doors to the city.
b. Hades:
    i. Ugaloths for hire, mm311: 4 types of them
c. Carceri: Mind prison
    i. Arcanaloth. Mm311: Move in and out of the mind prison, altering self at will. Looking for information from you.
d. Gehenna:
e. Acheron:



7. The background of the universe is the infinite staircase modeled after the “ways” from the wheel of time. This space is a huge network of floating islands connected by bridges and stairs that wind up, down, and all around through clouds. The stairs can be seen changing locations moving from place to place. You can see long distances but you cannot hear any sound you make. The further you look the more you see but you never see the sky above or ground below.
    a. Use a Maze from Maze website. (50x50 starts at top, E15 R100)
        i. The top of the maze is a higher elevation, the bottom is lower.
        ii. The solution is the main road which chimes.
        iii. Each turn or dead end is an island.
        iv. A vertical path is a stair
        v. A horizontal path is a bridge.

vi. If a character falls off a bridge/island/stair move then straight down on the maze until they cross a wall. This is the place they land.
vii. If a player is on a stair when it moves, shift them left or right in the maze until they cross a wall.
viii. The area is void of sound until “The Wind”, a living fog (Turmoil/Chaos), reaches you and attempts to grapple, consume, and silence you. In his aura sound acts normally but the wind also picks up.

b. Stairs and bridges along the main path vibrate like tuning forks when hit. This sound can induce harmonic resonance with others that pass the message onward alerting the guardian. It is the only sound which can propagate outside of his aura.

Cultures:

Overview:

The known world is a vast and diverse landscape, shaped by both natural forces and the intricate tapestry of civilizations that have risen and fallen throughout its history. Four prominent regions dominate the known continents:

1. Sheresh Empire (Northern Tundra):

- A magical realm where the arts, music, and daily life are intertwined with the enchantments of the land. Citizens are accustomed to the cold, and magical pollution is held at bay by giant bubble shields.
- Influenced by Creation, Joy, Renewal, and Curiosity, the Sheresh Empire thrives on the magical essence that permeates every aspect of life.

2. Principalities (Beneath Northern Tundra):

- A collective of powerful houses, each charged with specific responsibilities such as archives, magic policing, and trade facilitation.
- The politics of Shelk are intricate, with each house vying for influence and power. The Emperor rules over the collective, and guilds play a significant role in maintaining order and facilitating trades
- Influenced by Compassion, Contemplation, Fear, Knowledge, and Renewal

3. Soreheim (Eternal Lands):

- A vast wasteland dominated by colossal towers reaching above the clouds. The towers are made of steel-reinforced volcanic brick, and they serve as both habitats and places of production.
- The inhabitants of Soreheim, influenced by Contemplation, Sustain, Knowledge, and Ambition, face the challenges of massive creatures, including giants and behirs.

4. Phoenix Island:

- A matriarchal society where women own homes, and their word is law inside them. Husbands venture out for adventures, mining, and battles, returning with gifts.

- The queen's court settles disputes, and men bow at doorways. In times of war, the husband of the queen takes command, leading the armies with martial law.

Beyond these regions lie other mysterious lands, including the Nomdara Caravan, a mobile city on wheels that traverses different terrains, fostering trade and cultural exchange.

Based on the Gods, their own people, resources: symbols, language, norms, values, and artifacts.

Onboarding Cultural options

1. Legend has that as the world shook, shadow and ill-intent seeped from the gaping hole in the world. Holy men and women, speak of prophecy and omens that cling to the nightmares of the most devout. Many hold superstitions over talismans, crystals and words of ritual, old magic that lives beyond the scholars of the arcane. That which we fear brings unbridled power. There's a majesty in the manipulation of terror through the energies left as a spark upon the world. Here strength is in those vigilant and judicious.
2. From the ashes of the great calamity, arose a strong people. Those whose hearts are devoted to the pursuit of power seek to become one with the ways of strategy, commerce and war. Blessed by the trials of competition and feats of challenge, those chosen few begin their worship in the Area. Mighty champions of all walks come together to test their vigor religiously. Strength is law to those who belong. Here lay the mighty of us, legends in tale.
3. Lost in time is a chamber kept vigilantly by a child of a celestial. Long past is the day of destruction. In the new light those that choose to believe in renewed life, seek out this chamber through study and prayer. Hopes that on the other side of disaster, pursuits of growth and goodwill come with them the promised pool of eternal life. A kind and nurturing people celebrate the five days of discord with family, friends and good company.
4. Oddity persists here. Seeing is believing. Quirks, pranks and regular oddities abound among those that crave a spice to life. Quests for knowledge are ill-advised in a random universe, riddled with the impossible and improbable. The mystical arts are part of the natural disorder of the cosmos. What will be, will be, how could any one philosophy contain answers for those who truly seek freedom. Be wary of what you leave behind. Odd rumors, gossip and mistaken identity are common place for those who leave their lives unguarded. The adventure of life is in the experience. The appearance of totems across the landscape, a conspiracy or simply coincidental. Facts are just the stories one tells to another.
5. Remember all and nothing is ever truly lost. Hold close to our souls the record of things. Across the lands those who seek truth in the eternal design, seek to lift free the veils of the darkness through dedication to studious pursuits. No word shall be lost in these lands. Learning in its many forms is a community staple. Many trades and worldly skills are shared by the locals here. The keepers of record share across the lands with those who seek knowledge in public libraries. That which has long lain beyond the seas is traveled by the sailors, steered by the tellings of the planets. Though the darkness has always been, the days of rending are hence past. Deep in the scattered halls of learning is proof that the divine lives.

6. A euphoric existence is assured through the pursuits of self indulgence. Many of the denizens here seek pleasure in everyday life through a steady appetite of celebration, intoxication and song. Performances are accompanied by faint magical auras that many report leave a blissful state. Ceremonies are often performed to clear the mind and erase woes. A simple people, enraptured by their own earthly pleasures. The past should stay where it is... forgotten.
7. Scholarly endeavors are a commonality even among the uneducated. Peace and retrospection are a part of daily life, peppered with the popular social game "What if" where locals postulate a world different from their own. A serenity is cultivated by the local spiritual guides, keepers of questions, offering friendly advice and counsel. Questions relating to the greater workings of the cosmos, specifically those of the Divine are frowned upon. Where is the joy in a world where order and reason can be circumvented by the gods? The Divine as part of the natural order is Unspeculative and only the most brazen partake in the practical study of divinity. There is power in learned discovery itself. While a general delight is found in questioning everyday experiences, the days of darkness and their origin are a topic that can quickly induce restlessness and unease. A land of learning with a singular question that remains unasked since the dawn of recorded time.
8. To be one with the gods, an idol among mortals, temples are erected containing the presence of otherworldly beings. Wreathed in light and flame, visitors from beyond accept regularly made offerings from locals. Though the divine rarely speak, their presence has instilled the ideal of constant pursuit above that of happiness and created a dissonance in daily life. Those that dwell here are single-minded in their endeavors to win the blessings of heavenly beings and arise above their neighbors. Magical ambitions are highly revered, as those who have strived for the sun reap the greatest rewards and stand above the rest, heedless of daily toils, seeking power that those beyond mortals may give them to attain their quarry.
9. Overcoming trials as a collective begets togetherness. Sharing in the struggles of one another is the one path to rise above any odds. Here the inhabitants of the land find meaning in their bonds to one another, often forged through the communal sharing of woe. Love, compassion and empathy are the key to a better tomorrow. Throughout the lands rumors stir of cults, bound to one another in ceremonies of agony, collectively reliving their agony in a ritual of bonding. Through the tears we cry, we water the earth and thus feed the many. We are one people. One heart and mind of a shared suffering.

e. Lacks: Wood craft
f. Foods: Meat (Monster meat), Fungi, Corn, Wheat,
g. Language: Denizens: Nominally Humans, Orcs, Tieflings, Goblins, Duergar (mm122), Drow
h. Customs/Norms:
    i. Matriarchy. Women own their home and their word is law inside it. Husbands leave to adventure, mine, fight and return with gifts. If the gifts are accepted the husband may enter the home. Towns are run by the women who have homes in it. The queen's court settles disputes of the land. Men bow at doorways
    ii. In desperate wartime, the Husband of the queen will take command and lead the armies, martial law (vice marital law).
    iii. Blood is serious. Gifts of blood are a statement or offering of a warrior's pride (usually a finger prick dripped onto the back of the others' hand). This tradition is rarely used but can be found during important vows (e.g. a promise of return, victory, marriage.)
    iv. Coins are valued in hardness i.e. backwards (C>S>G)
    v. Forests are only entered by the bravest souls as they are very dangerous.
    vi. Combat beasts/pets are common.
    vii. Documents are carved into wooden slabs (if it's not worth taking the time to carve it, it's not worth writing) viii. Calendar:
    ix. They do not do what is expected of them, but they follow the heart.
    x. Calendar is a count down of 6 weeks each with 12 days until the next Sieve (Doomsday).

2. The Principalities: Governed by: An Emperor who receives tribute from the Lords who own land. Each has his own army which together makes up the Emperor's army. The Emperor is the judge. Any business or guild on a lord's land owes taxes to that lord except in MAL (Guild-owned land)
    a. The Emperor tasks each Lord with a role. Each house has its own guard of varying sizes. The king taxes the houses and provides the king's army as well as infrastructure. The heads of each house are part of the king's council of 8, making decisions for the kingdom. Each house uses spies to gain blackmail against other houses and sometimes assassins. The emperor's army is mostly necromantic wizards which raise the dead of their enemies to steamroll opposing forces. This is the eternal lands denizens have not entered Principalities of Shelk.

b. Principalities:
    i. Principality of Cosmouth: Charged with Archives and royal treasuries, collects the taxes from the other houses
        1. In the business of lumber and shipwrights
        2. Are supremely frustrated that all of their tax records are taxed when passing through Mimolot. Sometimes it's better to sail all the way around.
    ii. Principality of Shirsh: Charged with Investigators of cross-house misconduct and magic misuse. (Magic Police)
        1. In the business of private investigation
        2. "The Professor" Allen Shirsh is an old wizard and the patriarchal figurehead of the Magic Police
        3. He collects orphan twins to use as experiments in his magical research and as his elite task force for the magic police
        4. Magic Police called "Magi Magistratus" iii. Principality of Shelk: Charged with Policing all the Kings' roads.
        1. Peace keepers
        2. Has the largest army by far but it is spread out throughout the empire working as policemen.
        3. In the business of Fashion (the police always dress in bright colors and tall plumes on their hats.)
        4. Emperors castle is in northern shelk
    iv. Principality of Panim (Pa-neem): Charged with The god appeasers,
        1. Receives a portion of the sacrifices (money and food), act as mediators between gods and the people
        2. Place of bought afterlife. People save for their afterlife and send coffins of loved ones with their fortunes to Panem for undeath. Level of luxury is based on what they can afford. (anywhere from farming to staying in a resort)
        3. The emperor's brother is in charge of managing the house of Panim
        4. Here lies a graveyard of past wars with eternal lands including many giant skeletons
    v. Principality of Mimolot: Charged with Education of nobles' children and magic schools
        1. Book tariff, 1 book per book (Book can be retrieved at the border but a minimum time is required while they make a copy. The returned book has a stamp that is evidence of it having been taxed)
        2. In the business of magic items
        3. Are in favor with the emperor since he recruits his elite army from their graduates.

vi. Principality of Mal: Charged with Facilitating trade and banks,
    1. Is in the business of horses and trade halls (a network of markets throughout the kingdom)
    2. Has fallen into ruin because the shipping guild coalition of guilds squeezed out their market using ships and subsidizing with wagons.
    3. Emperor dismissed the house head from his circle and invited a guild representative who has struck a deal with the emperor (Mal won't pay taxes but offers "walmart" services to every province in his land for free)

vii. Principality of Roaz: Charged with holding all offenders of the law.
    1. They make money by letting people out on bail or selling tickets (visitation rites) for visitation rights.
    2. Also #free labor - you'll see groups of prisoners being used around towns as a source of labor.
    3. Ore production
    4. Magic is forbidden in this province
    5. Ninjas everywhere

viii. Principality of Zootia (Zoo-Sha) : Charged with production of raw materials: wool, crops, livestock

ix. The Union - Guilds: Replaced the role of Principality of mal acting as a mediator of trade throughout the empire.
    1. Assassin Guild: Are completely ignored when seen (Vibrant red hoods). They often walk into private meetings/gatherings unhindered and never spoken to.
        a. Many rumors including: Target dies just by them entering the room. Or they simply will walk in and stab someone before leaving, all in plain sight.
        b. The houses hire them to kill nonmajor family members in rival houses to aid their own needs.
    2. Shipping Guild: formerly mainly focusing on fishing and sailing have formed a coalition of guilds to make up a market conglomerate. They used this power to squeeze the Mal House out of their right to rule the land.
    3. Cobbler Guild: Mostly used as an example guild when discussing how guilds operate. They make shoes.
    4. Sword Guild: make swords and specialize in the blade.
    5. Knife Guild: specialize in hilts, no guard, and a shorter blade. They might team up with sword guild to make a better overall product.
    6. Blacksmith: All farming products made of metal
    7. Armor guild
    8.

3. Nomdara - Merchant nation Caravan
    a. Trade with all nations, carrying treasures and oddities, from and to, all around the world. Trading with everyone including leviathans for safe passage through whirlpool infested oceans.
    b. Don't mess with them or else: Coordinated purchase strikes that remove all necessities of life from an area leaving the area helpless. They buy it all at once at a VERY reasonable price. The denizens figure with all the extra money, they can just cover down and buy from their neighbor. All the gold, no staples. (Food, water, ale, jackets if its cold, firewood)
    c. Nomdara, the Wandering Caravan, traverses the vast and diverse lands, weaving through the principality of Shalk and the Sheresh Empire in the northern tundra. This nomadic nation is a spectacle of trade and diversity, a moving marketplace that connects distant corners of the world.
    d. Overview: Nomdara is a colossal caravan, a mobile city on wheels, comprised of interconnected wagons, tents, and makeshift structures. It is a testament to adaptability and cooperation, where various races and cultures coexist in a harmonious blend. Merchants, artisans, and travelers join this ever-moving community, making it a melting pot of ideas and commodities.
    e. Trade and Commerce: Nomdara is renowned for its trade expeditions, carrying treasures, oddities, and goods from one region to another. The caravan becomes a bustling marketplace whenever it settles temporarily. The inhabitants engage in bartering and commerce, contributing to the economic prosperity of the lands it visits.
    f. Diplomacy and Mutual Respect: Nomdara's success relies on diplomacy and mutual respect. They establish agreements with the settled nations they visit, ensuring a symbiotic relationship. The nomads bring unique wares, knowledge, and cultural exchange, while the settled nations provide resources and hospitality. Any act of aggression towards Nomdara risks coordinated purchase strikes, leaving an area devoid of essential goods.
    g. Cultural Harmony: The nomadic lifestyle fosters a sense of unity among the diverse population. Nomdara values communal bonds and shared experiences, and the inhabitants find strength in their collective journey. The caravan's social fabric is woven with stories, traditions, and a shared commitment to keep the nomadic spirit alive.
    h. Leadership and Decision-Making: Nomdara is led by a council of elders representing different races and professions. Decisions are made through consensus, emphasizing equality and fairness. The nomads celebrate diversity, viewing it as a source of strength that enriches their journey.
    i. Nomadic Challenges:* While Nomdara thrives on its mobile existence, it faces challenges such as unpredictable weather, encounters with hostile creatures, and the constant need for resources. The nomads overcome these challenges through ingenuity, cooperation, and a deep connection with the land they traverse.

    j. Living in Harmony: Nomdara exemplifies a harmonious coexistence with nature. The nomads respect the environments they traverse, leaving minimal impact on the lands they temporarily inhabit. They celebrate the beauty of diversity, not only among their own ranks but also in the landscapes they traverse.
    k. Nomdara, the Wandering Caravan, is not just a mobile marketplace; it is a testament to unity, adaptability, and the endless possibilities that arise when different cultures come together in a shared journey.
4. Sherash Comunes- Northern Tundra where magic is commonplace inside of Arts, painting, poetry, playwrights, Music and daily life. The land is snow covered and filled with magic pollution that is prevented from entering each city by a giant bubble shield (Looks like giant glass igloos). Pretty much every citizen has at least one cantrip. The magic pollution can cause spells in the area to act erroneously and too much exposure can lead to wild mutations (use the metamorphica D1000)
    a. Influenced by Creation, Joy, Renewal, Curiosity
    b. Resources: Magic, Clay, Sand, Animals for parts/chemicals
    c. Food: Magically created (and delicious)
    d. Language: Nominally Humans, Halflings, Elves
    e. Customs/Norms:
        i. Calendar: 10 months of 36 days. 9 day weeks of two days work and one day rest.
        ii. Everything is privately owned.
        iii. Lawbreakers are exiled to the polluted waste/ tundra

5. Soreheim Alliance - the Eternal Lands - a vast wasteland of flattened hills, sparsely scattered by imaginably massive towers that spread above the clouds. The towers are topped with giant bowl structures which give more surface for skyscrapers. Massive bridges craning out from one tower top to the next through the clouds. Some of these bridges are so long that small villages are built up along the way. The basements of the towers extend to bedrock where magma is used in forging. Towers are built out of steel-reinforced volcanic brick (really big bricks). Unfinished Towers are both drilling downward, and building up (lifting a massive ramp to be a bridge for a new bowl. Towers connected to an unfinished one may not rotate since their bridge is dropped. Once a tower is finished construction the drill will be raised to the top to allow for bridge rotation.
    a. Geography: Vast waste infested with massive creatures of all kinds: Cyclops, Hill giants, Stone giants, rocs, bugs, purple worms (yes dinos too). Cloakers dwell the underside of the bowls atop the towers, utilizing the rotating umbra generated. Some floors of the towers are abandoned and have been inhabited by cave creatures (maybe a beholder too).
    b. Values: Money, production/technology, Architecture, gambling, teamwork/interdependence, progress/science

c. Influenced by Contemplation(Cyfoes), Fear(Felelem), Knowledge(Gwybodaeth), Ambition(Vanalzo), Compassion(Cysur)
d. Artifacts:
e. Resources: Stone, Gems mined in the west owned by a colony of dragons (potential alliance with Giants), Steel, Golems for working
f. Arts: Magic is used in forging, but only the monarchs really “cast”.
g. Lacks: Plants, trees
h. Food: Meat, Fried skins, Jerky, Vined plants & fruits
i. Language: Nominally Dwarves, Giants, Gnomes
j. Norms:
    i. Governed by: guilds
    ii. Calendar: Everyday is a new day. Keep counting up skipping the five days that don’t exist. 1-90 the days of each season.
    iii. They learn to love what is expected of them and promote the greater good.
    iv. Caste System but every part is important (except for the useless one); racial communism
        a. Alien interaction: If you don’t work for the system, you can’t HAVE anything from the system. Aliens must work for food but may borrow anything that is not used up freely.
    2. Storm Giants(mm149): Kings and rulers (Keepers of Everything)
        a. Create Behirs,mm25, to fight dragons. Huge monstrosity
    3. Cloud: Managers/ Diplomats/ (Keepers of the people)
    4. Fire Giants (Keepers of Production): Forge, architects
        a. Assisted by Azer, mm22
    5. Frost Giant: Generals/prospectors (Keepers of Safety)
    6. Dwarves: Maintenance on the tower, weapons, anything really, sewer maintenance.
    7. Gnomes: Housework, Cooks, Garbage duty, Sewer cleaner
        a. Deep gnomes underground
    8. Hill Giants (Keepers of virtue): Untouchable, used as an army (They pave the enemy to make room for building), Wearing loincloths and black hoods. They carry trees as weapons. In cities/towns they are treated as invisible, Never talked about or to.
    9. Stone Giants(keepers of Livestock): form self governed tribes in the wastelands (reclusive, quiet, calm)
    10. Cyclops, mm: simple reclusive lives and keep herds for food.

World:

Overall map from https://azgaar.github.io/Fantasy-Map-Generator/

It could be fun to have the icebergs floating in that middle ocean as well.

The earth has two large dense masses on east and west poles created from the doomsday plane barrier breaking. They were mostly mended by the gods but the tilt of the earth is slightly off resulting in the earth flipping 5 times a year.

The gods chained the oceans to their basins, as to prevent world ending tsunamis, and setup a demigod (warlock maker) as chained guardian. Consequently this demigod is imprisoned to its duty.

CULTURAL EVENTS:

Ephemeral Bazaar:

A marketplace that is setup only during “insert annual cultural festival.” The Ephemeral Bazaar offers rare materials, enchanted fabrics, and artifacts, attracting traders and adventurers alike.

The Walk of Spring:

An annual event where members of the noble houses of the Principalities of Shelk make a pilgrimage to Aetherium Springs to wash their finest clothes in the natural springs. Parades of the families specially invited by the noble houses come together under the protection of a royal detail of Roadwardens. With the Emperor in attendance, the Walk of Spring is one of the most exclusive and flamboyant moving festivals in the Principalities.
